

Wedding Advice for Ben the Bullet

It's the 2nd of September the Marques been erected,
The church is full of flowers and the guests are all expected.
And In order to mark this you're big Wedding day,
Your work colleagues have some thoughts they want to convey.
We all met you when you joined Exhibitions a couple of years ago,
A young fresh faced accountant, keen on processing lots of dough.
You progressed quickly since you've been here, and we can certainly say you've tried,
But the harsh reality still remains, you're not fully qualified.

It all began at Uni, your courage was a little low,
You admired a girl from afar and just couldn't let her know.
It all could have gone tits up, when she was out on the pull one night,
But your mates helped him out, and made sure it turned out right.
Everything was going well and then in a restaurant in November 05,
You managed to pause between mouthfuls to ask Emma to be your Bride.
After nearly 7 years together, this was the special day you chose,
And even managed to pop the question, without the aid of your mates and a rose.

Now the your Wedding day is here, that you've been planning for so long,
And we'd like to draw on your experiences at work to ensure, things don't go wrong.
Now let's first talk about dressing, and what you're going to wear,
The brown socks and red dress will have to go, since they clash with your blonde hair.
Another factor to consider, is first impressions when you arrive,
Don't go turning up like you did, at your first Clothes Show Live.
For starters you were late, and punctuality's important here,
Plus you looked like you'd slept in your suit, after one to many beers.
And you'll not start off well, with your brand new father in law,
If M & A security have to manhandle you through the church door.

Next some advice about vows, please make sure you stand still,
No walking in circles, no "buts" just a clear "I will".
And when the speeches arrive later on, project your voice for goodness sake,
Don't succumb to your sweet tooth, and mumble with a mouth full of cake.
About the Wedding video, ensure great coverage of Emma and you,
But no need to capture every moment, we already has footage of you on the loo!
Finally when it's time for bed, at the end of the night,
Don't go splitting your chin again, giving your new Mrs a fright.

Then you'll be off to Brazil, for the dream honeymoon that you planned,
Checking out the sights and drinking cocktails on the sand.
But you'll have to leave the sunshine and face the harsh reality of life,
When you head home to Wandsworth, and get used to having a wife.
We hope you have an amazing trip away, and certainly one to remember,
And you can tell us all about it back in the office at the end of September.
So all that's left to say is when Bullet goes "Booyah" the girls go "ooooohhh"
Congratulations and good luck from the finance Crew!

2nd September 2006

